Response to Arguments

The Applicants arguments filed on July 5, 2005 have been fully considered.
See following rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 13 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Weidemer, (US Patent No 5,155,680) in view of Eggers et al. (US Patent No 4,920,432).

As per claim 13,

Weidemer, ('680) discloses a selective access computer system comprises:

A computing workstation having at least one software application and at least one input/output device(Figure 1)

A selective access mechanism for obtaining electronic payment authorization for a user's financial instrument and for permitting selective access to the computer workstation upon payment authorization from the user (Figure 3)

A credit card and a bank issued debit card reader connected to the computing workstation for obtaining payment authorization (Figure 3)

Art Unit: 3621

obtaining electronic payment authorization for a financial instrument, permitting access to the at least one software application based on payment authorization; (Column 5, lines 60-65)

tracking use of the computer system including the software application and input/output devices of the computer system, charging the financial instrument with a fee based on the tracking step; and terminating access to the at least one software application upon notification from the user. (Column 6, lines 43-50)

a resource tracker for determining a cost of using the computer system based on an amount of time of use and quantity of use of software applications and input/output devices; and a user interface configured for permitting access to at least one of the software application and the input/output devices only upon payment authorization through the electronic payment mechanism. (Column 5, lines 60-65)

a desktop user interface to enable access, upon receipt of payment authorization, to at least one of:

a program monitor configured for enabling selection of the at least one software application
a peripheral input/output monitor configured for enabling selection of the at least one input/output device. (Figure 1 [PC enables selection of programs, also has I/O functions])

Weidemer, ('680) does not explicitly disclose a computing workstation having at least one software application and at least one input and output device ; Eggers et al. (US Patent No 4,920,432) discloses a computing workstation having at least one software application and at least one input and output device ;(Figure 1) It would be obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to combine the Weidemer method with the Eggers et al. in order to allow the usage of software on a computer.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 24-26 are allowable over the prior art record.

Claim 15, 21,22 and 23 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
